One-Stop-shop in cities for citizens

Auke J. van den Hoek, Vice President PayQuest B.V.

PayQuest B.V.,
The supplier of Cloud Based Payment Solutions
PayQuest cooperate within a consortium of (inter)national companies in order to realize a new strategy in merging Payment Infrastructures with Public Service-Providing, using Cutting Edge Cloud Technology on global level.
Why this presentation?
The Status Quo

- It is clear that the offering of services to the public in rural area’s and suburbs of cities is declining.

- Due to upscaling, forced by savings (economic reasons!), municipalities are merging resulting in the closure of town halls.

- Banks are closing their subsidiaries and are removing ATM machines.

- Public Service Providers like postal services have a negative business case if they have to provide a complete own store.
Status Quo

If we look at liveability for people, living in rural area’s and suburbs of cities, we see a conflict between social welfare and economics:

Social welfare: in general, will cost the community money.
Economics: economize expenses due to a (relative) small budget.

On the other hand, to boost the local social welfare, the local economics must be healthy, but with the disappearing of services, this is a tricky one.
Preserve or Restore Liveability

Social Welfare

Healthy Local Economics
We are in need of a toolbox to restore social welfare, operating with a healthy business case in order to preserve or restore liveability.

With the ServiceCorner™, we have the perfect solution.

Luckily I can send my parcel still on time!

With “Western Union” I could transfer some money to aunt Betsy!

It is nice to be able to collect my Passport before flying to Gibraltar.
